

A Study on Canine Behaviour and Training. The dog is one of the most loyal companions a human can have. Dogs often run around the yard, chase balls, and play fetch with their owners. Training a dog requires patience, repetition, and positive reinforcement. A well trained dog will sit, stay, and come when called. Puppies especially benefit from early socialisation with other dogs and people. Many dog owners report that daily walks and play sessions improve the overall behaviour of their pet.